

National Institute for Security Studies: Safeguarding Society for a Safer Tomorrow

The National Institute for Security Studies is a non-profit organization dedicated to researching, analyzing, and educating individuals on security issues affecting society. Our mission is to contribute to a safer tomorrow by equipping individuals and organizations with the knowledge and skills to address current and future security challenges.

Research fellows of the Institute are drawn from the National Security Council, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Mongolian Armed Forces, Institute for Strategic Studies, Mongolian Academy of Sciences, National University of Mongolia.

History and Background

The National Institute for Security Studies was established in 2018 by the collective effort of leading security professionals and since we are committed to the goal of developing a network for security research and analysis.

Even though the NISS is comparably young think tank entity, we has grown to become a one of the valuable asset on security matters in Mongolia. Our quality research, analytical works has been cited in numerous academic studies and policy papers, and we collaborating with leading government and private entities, academia, and think tanks nationwide.

Areas of Expertise

The Institute specializes in a wide range of security topics including international, regional, sub-regional political and socio-economic trend study, traditional and non-traditional, newly emerging security challenges and threats, intelligence analysis.

NISS supports and participates in decision-making process of the government entities within the area of interest.

Research and Analysis

NISS team conducts original research on security topics, produce high-quality analysis, and develop innovative and practical solutions to security challenges.

NISS releases weekly newsletters and monthly bulletins delivered to government organizations and partner research institutes.

Our team is composed of seasoned experts and professionals with diverse backgrounds and skills. The rich pool of part-time researchers partnering with NISS gives us an opportunity to deliver not only sustainable high-quality research papers and comprehensive security solutions that integrate scientific principles with practical applications but also coordinate number of projects in the same time.

Training and Education

With the aim to increase public awareness and knowledge, NISS is collaborating with the governmental and non-governmental entities, academia, the schools of international affairs of the well-known universities in Mongolia, in providing a range of training and educational programs seeking to enhance their security knowledge and skills.

1

Workshops at executive level

This workshops are tailored to the government officials, and other decision-makers who want to stay ahead of emerging security challenges and develop a strategic vision for the future.

2

Workshops at professional level

We offer professional development programs for security practitioners looking to enhance their skills and stay up-to-date on the latest trends and best practices in their field.

3

Workshops at academia level

We offer a range of practical workshops for the students and professors of the educational facilities seeking to enhance their knowledge and skills in specific areas of security analysis, risk management and mitigation.

Collaborations and Partnerships

Our partners are leading government entities, academia, and other national and international non-profit organizations, think tanks together we develop innovative security solutions and advance knowledge about security issues.

Some of our notable national partners and donors include the National Security Council, Institute for Strategic Studies, General Intelligence Agency of Mongolia, National Academy of Science, National University of Mongolia and others. Together, we work on research projects, publications, and other initiatives of mutual interest.

Our notable international partners and donors are Konrad Adenauer Foundation, The Asia Foundation, Russian Institute of Strategic Studies, Hans Seidel Foundation, Chinese Institute of Contemporary International Relation, National Strategic Academy of Tsinghua University, Institute for National Security Strategy of Korea, Institute de Recherche Stratégique de l'Ecole Militaire, France and Stiftung fuer Wissenschaft und Politik, Germany.

Contact Information

We welcome inquiries from individuals and organizations interested in learning more about our programs and services.

To contact us, please visit our website at www.niss.gov.mn or email us at info@niss.gov.mn.

T

Address:

Government bld-2, UN Street, Ulaanbaatar,
Mongolia

Phone:

(976) 9200-3960

Email:

info@niss.gov.mn